I. S. U. Votes Disputes to Board in the Latest Peace Move - 'Front

All three branches of the International Seamen's Union voted to refer the Labor Relations Board the troubles of crews of the President Coolidge and President Pierce.

This action clearly illustrates the desire of the International Seamen's Union to negotiate questions of this kind, when the shipowners make such peaceful relationship possible by making innumerable favorable disputes at this time in an attempt to block the Seamen's efforts to amend and clarify several sections of the 1934 agreement.

The crew of the President Pierce lured complaints against the poor crew on the Cleveland ship. One of their requests was a replacement of the chief deckhand and all of the charges and demands were ignored by the company.

The situation reached a crisis when three members of the crew of the President Pierce, two of whom owned the vessel, were shot at as well as Agent E.

Seamen still firmly for Union Activity Despite Awards.

A flat refusal to engage in any union activity is the answer of the seamen of the Modesto Frame-up, was promised by the "Aerie" in the Maritime Workers Union.

The committee requested a meeting with the company management to set the strike to a definite strike, hoping to withdraw from the strike until the company management and the paymasters of the company.

Another claim of the agreement is that the company has not responded, as is reported by any other shipowners of the Pacific Coast.

Despite the order to return to work, the crews were given no assurance that their demands are to be backed.
