Sailors Union Tied Up by Court Order; Legal Battle For Control of Union Now in Progress

STATEMENT OF SHIPYARD STRIKE

As the shipyard strike goes into its fourth week, and the present round of picketing to try and break the ranks of the strikers is beginning to tell, the Employers think it is time to try and settle things once and for all. They have tried the various methods and they have tried the legal route, and now they are beginning to think that the freedom of these prisoners is at stake if they do not try to settle things once and for all.

The Employers have offered to give the Employers all the support that they can, and they have offered to give the Employers all the help that they can.

The Federation

Dear Sirs:

I am writing to you in connection with the recent news reports of the conditions which are being met with in the Pacific Coast Longshoremen's Strike. One of the problems which I have been trying to get help on is the matter of the West Coast seamen's rights to represent their own interests.

I am aware that you have been doing a great deal of work in this field and that you have been successful in securing the rights of the seamen on the East Coast. However, I would like to know if there is any possibility of extending these rights to the seamen on the West Coast.

I understand that there is a group of seamen who are in favor of the Maritime Federation and who are willing to fight for their rights. If you are able to help them in any way, I would appreciate it very much.

Sincerely yours,

[Your Name]
SAILORS' CHARTER

During the meeting of the ISU, the President, J. C. Olander, gave a report of the proceedings of the 1934 convention of the Maritime Industry in San Francisco, which was held June 2nd to 5th. After the presentation of the report, the President called upon members of the convention for their reports. The reports were read by Messrs. G. E. Hays, Harry Day, Henry Brady, William Keir, and William C. White, who were elected as delegates to the convention.

REAL ISSUES

Among the most vital issues of the day are those pertaining to the protection of the seafarers. The ISU is fully aware of the need for a strong and united labor movement to safeguard the rights of the working class. The ISU is committed to the principle of collective bargaining and the right to strike as a means of negotiating fair wages and working conditions.
