Faker Attempts to Remove Harry Bridges

Statement by International Longshore and Warehouse Union

Committee on the Pacific Coast District

President of the Seattle Local, John F. Ryan, is trying to rape the rights of the Seattle men by trying to remove the best man in the nation's longshoremen. The move is designed to bring a strike out of the Seattle waterfront.

The move is a desperate attempt by the L.L.A. to control the Seattle waterfront. The Seattle Local is known as one of the strongest locals in the country. It has a reputation for fighting against the employers and for standing up for the rights of the workers.

The move is also a threat to the rest of the L.L.A. locals. The L.L.A. is a federation of locals, and if one local is able to remove a representative, it will set a precedent for others to follow.

Ryan, who has been a member of the L.L.A. for many years, is known for his strong leadership and his ability to keep the workers united. He has been a strong advocate for the workers' rights and has always stood up for what is right.

The L.L.A. is a powerful union, and its members are proud to be part of it. They will not allow anyone to come in and try to take away their rights.

They will fight back, and they will not let anyone succeed in their attempt to remove John F. Ryan. The Seattle Local will stand strong and will not give in to the L.L.A.'s threats.

Sympathizer Helps Strike

Despite the provision that the warehousemen may be stopped in the future, the workers are determined to continue the strike for higher wages and shorter hours. The workers have already won a 10 cent an hour raise and are now demanding that the company sign a contract recognizing the U.A.W. as their collective bargaining agent.

Seattle Warehousemen Face Vicious F

BEATE W.-The Workers Warehousemen and Teamsters, who are facing a possible injunction prohibiting them from picking the store, called police to protect the workers.

The police were summoned to the store after the workers had set up a picket line outside the entrance. The workers claimed that they were being threatened by the management and that they were being prevented from entering the store to purchase supplies.

The police arrived at the scene and took charge of the situation. They arrested several of the workers and cleared the area. The workers were allowed to continue their picketing, but they were warned not to obstruct traffic or interfere with the police.

The workers have been picketing the store for several weeks, demanding higher wages and better working conditions. The management has refused to negotiate with the workers and has threatened to close the store if the workers continue their strike.

The police were called to the scene after several incidents of violence, including the throwing of stones and the use of inflammatory language. The police were able to restore order and prevent the situation from escalating.

SAN DieO, Calif., Dec. 11.—The management of the Seattle Warehousemen's Union has been ordered to stop picketing at the store, following an injunction issued by the court.

The owners of the store, who are members of the United Storemen's and Teamster's Union, have been picketing the store for several weeks, demanding higher wages and better working conditions. The management has refused to negotiate with the workers and has threatened to close the store if the workers continue their strike.

The owners of the store have filed a lawsuit against the workers, claiming that the picketing is an unlawful interference with their business. The court has issued an injunction prohibiting the workers from picketing the store.

The workers are expected to appeal the decision, and the case is likely to continue for some time. The management has already threatened to close the store if the workers continue their strike, and the workers are determined to continue their protest until their demands are met.

Orders Sent To Coffin and Redington; But Loyal Workers Refuse To Aid

The drug warehousemen employed at McKesson-Langley-Michaels are still locked out. The company locked them out on Saturday, December 12. This has followed a period of attempts on both sides which the War Labor Board has provided and which the Unions did everything they could to negotiate an agreement with the drug industry. The success given by the Unions for this lockout is that they have almost completely broken the drug industry in San Francisco, with the exception of McKesson-Langley-Michaels.

Forces that are used to being treated with contempt by their employers have fought back with a determination that is not to be underestimated.

Guttermen and Fakers

Guttermen have been the most important subject of many a political campaign. But when a city is made unclean by the gutters, the city is made unclean by the gutters. The argument that gutters are not important is a fallacy. The truth is that gutters are important, and that it is the duty of the city to keep them clean.

Because of the great confusion that exists here and the constant confusion that goes on, the principles about trade unions for the sake of clarification.

To those who may consider this question superfluous, the present serious division in the A. F. of L. can be cited as one of many examples which indicate.

ECONOMIC UNITED FRONT

The trade union movement is in great danger. The active participation of the workers in the broader sociological movement, which represents the immediate interests of its members, is of the utmost importance. The trade union leaders must work to promote the interests of the workers as they see them, and to this end they must be prepared to fight for the right of the workers to live as human beings.

Any who claims to have such a program will have to face the fact that the workers are fighting for their lives. The present strike is only forced to move with desperate quickness. In it can be compared to the heat under the hot sun.

With lightning speed, the accumulated differences reach their climax. Strikes are often the result of the rapidity with which the machine creators are the most powerful tool of the employer. In the present crisis, they have been given up in support of the present government. The slow labor strikes to achieve their ends. The employer, with the connivance of the government, can get away with this. But when the rank and file fight to decide it, the government is stronger than the employer. In the present government, the present government must be able to coexist.

The fight has been a long and uphill one. The number of strikes has increased, but the number of workers involved has decreased. But one thing is certain: the most difficult task is to get workers to understand the necessity of the present strike.

Honolulu Strikers Report Big Gains

Special to the Voice of the Federation

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 6—Striking Maritime Unions in Honolulu are making considerable headway in making the citizens of the territory union-minded. Never before in the history of these islands have the people seen so many workers as active in their trades as they are today.

But only are our own unions growing, there is also a strong tendency for workers here to turn to some schools to furnish them with the necessary information regarding the union movement, and the need of entering union ranks.

Public's Interest Linked With Maritime Unions' Cause

U.S. Government, All Seagoing Profession Back Strikers Stand

The present maritime controversy, which has frozen all ocean-steam commerce on the Pacific Coast, is a struggle between the group of shipowners on the one hand, and the entire maritime unions on the other. Interests of the general public are very seriously involved. It is understood that the interests of the various maritime unions are no different than the interests of the maritime unions, and we believe we can demonstrate this to almost anyone's satisfaction.

The shipowners are accused of having exorbitant salaries and bonuses, and other forms of so-called 'coin-Pensation, corrupting expense accounts, exploitation of the public. It is alleged that the shipowners are entirely in the wrong. And it doesn't stop there! There are men who are on strike because they believe they are wrong and are out on strike with the others.

A committee of the Pacific Steamship Owners' Association, representing all the shipowners, has been organized to deal with this situation. They have been trying to settle the dispute by attempting to aid the privileged classes. But Anderson introduced into this discussion the idea that the interests of the public are no different than the interests of the maritime unions, and we believe we can demonstrate this to almost anyone's satisfaction.
