HAWAIIAN LABOR FEDERATION'S GAINS NOTED

The Hawaiian Islands Federation of Labor is, in effect, a news item. In the few weeks that it has functioned, the federation has accomplished much. This past week, the H.I. F.L. has signed up a new member, the Hawaiian Brewery Company, makers of the popular P♦♣lanes brand of beer. The signing up of this membership, which is the work of the local organizing committee, is a major victory for the federation.

The federation has also taken steps to organize workers in the printing industry. A meeting was held last week to discuss the possibility of organizing the printers. The meeting was attended by representatives of the printers and the federation. A date for the next meeting was set and a committee was appointed to work on the organizing drive.

The federation has also been working to improve the working conditions of its members. A number of grievances have been filed with the local employer associations and the federation is now working to get the grievances resolved.

The federation has also been active in the political arena. It has endorsed candidates for public office and has been working to register voters for the upcoming election.

The federation has also been working to increase its membership. A number of new members have been added to the federation in the past few weeks. The federation is now working to continue its growth.

The federation has also been working to improve its organization. A number of meetings have been held to discuss the organization of the federation. The federation is now working to improve its structure and to increase its effectiveness.

In summary, the Hawaiian Islands Federation of Labor has accomplished much in the few weeks that it has functioned. The federation is now working to continue its growth and to improve its organization. The federation is a strong force in the labor movement and will continue to work for the improvement of the working conditions of its members.

"VOICE of the FEDERATION"

"MINIMUM WAGES"

Marine workers, better than anyone else in the world, are entitled to benefits which will enable them to get the goods they are entitled to and to enjoy the fruits of their labor. The Marine Commission was seemingly aware of this fact as the hearing on wages and working conditions took place in a city where the minimum wage law would be strenuously opposed by the shipowners unless of them at least 20% of the men or more of the workmen in the plant were union members. The fact that the hearing on working conditions and wages was held in a city where the minimum wage law would be opposed by the shipowners unless of them at least 20% of the men or more of the workmen in the plant were union members is a further indication of the importance of the question.

The conditions in the marine industry are very similar to those in other industries where minimum wage laws are in operation. The minimum wage law is of great benefit to the workers in the marine industry, and the absence of such a law would be a serious check on the workers' ability to get the goods and to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

"RESOLUTION"

Resolution No. 2 of the National Maritime Union was adopted by the Trades Union Congress of the United Kingdom. The resolution expresses the workers' faith in the effectiveness of collective bargaining as the only method by which the workers can maintain their wages and working conditions.

The purpose of the legislation was to establish a National Maritime Labor Board to regulate wages, hours, and conditions of employment of seamen in commerce involving labor of seamen on ships of the United States, and to provide for the enforcement of such regulations. The bill was opposed by those who believed in autonomous unionism, and supported by those who favored centralization of labor relations.

The bill was introduced and referred to the Committee on Commerce, and was later referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. It was passed by the House of Representatives on June 2, 1937, and by the Senate on June 7, 1937, and was signed into law by the President on June 17, 1937.
