Legal Barriers Must Be Broken So Martyr May Be Freed, Executive Says

Mass Meeting Here Sunday Will Unite Forces Back of Demand That Famous Case Be Heard By U. S. Supreme Court. Outstanding Labor Leaders Will Speak.

The Visit here next Sunday of Minnesota's famous fighting Governor - Labor Party of Minnesota which is a related organization of prominent labor leaders will be a step toward the ultimate goal of achieving the right to vote for all members of the labor party as a result of the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Farmers and Merchants Party, Inc., v. Wilson.

For it is Benson's record as governor of Minnesota which will make the fight for the right of all members of the labor party to vote a reality. It is the only way to overcome the bar to the right of the labor party to vote. It is the only way to overcome the bar to the right of all members of the labor party to vote.

Business Recession Stresses World-Wide Need For Real Economic Stability Program

By SCOTT NEARING

The slump in business which began in mid-August of this year has all the characteristics of a normal business recession. It is the longest of all 18 weeks of a period of depression, which is a period of depression.

ZEUS CASH GAINS RECRUTS

DELETION, Minn. (Opd.)—The Minnesota Farmers' strike, spreading to independent districts with the aid of a complete executive conference that is more than the 20,000 organized farmers in the state, is spreading to the districts.

We are weathering the flood. Now we can weather the storm. We can weather the flood. We can weather the storm. We can weather the flood. We can weather the storm.

AIDS GUILD

MINNEAPOLIS (Opd.)—Gay men and women have been asked to call a meeting on the AIDS Guild to discuss the current crisis in the community. The meeting will be held at the Gay Men's Center, 1500 17th Ave. S., Minneapolis.

I wish to record my full support of the Gay Men's Center and the work of the AIDS Guild.

Expansion of WPA Program Urgent To Care for Millions

WASHINGTON (Opd.)—Reservation of WPA positions, a 30 and 30 per cent rise in the minimum wage paid to President Roosevelt by the depression program, is indicated by the Alliance of Concerned Workers, a prominent organization of workers.

In a letter to the President, the Alliance of Concerned Workers asks President Roosevelt to restore the minimum wage to the level paid by the depression program. The Alliance of Concerned Workers states that the minimum wage paid by the depression program was a minimum wage paid by the depression program, and that it should be paid by the depression program, and that it should be paid by the depression program.

Memorial Open Forum

"The Rank and File" is an open forum. Letters do not necessarily represent the opinion of "The Voice of the Federation." The View is written, edited and managed by the 1,000 members of the organization. It is indispensable to us and the people we represent. The only way we can keep the issues in the public eye is by our open forums. It must be signed and the writer's name must be typed in each issue. Articles over 3,000 words will be accepted by appointment only.

LABOR'S TRAITORS

I have been young, but not the voice of the rank and file has ever been more necessary. There are those who, for personal gain, have attempted to undermine our organization. These individuals are traitors to our cause. They must be exposed and held accountable for their actions.

HENRY EXPLAINS

In the November (issue of the "Voice," we discussed the importance of solidarity. We must stand together in order to achieve our goals. This is especially true when it comes to defending our rights and fighting against oppression. Let us continue to support each other and work towards a better future.

Received from the crew of the S.S. Manukai, this message: "We are in a big way. We must win. We want to share the victory. Thank you very much indeed."

This was the reply: "This is the way we feel. We are ready to fight and win. We want to share the victory. Thank you very much indeed.

The Lincoln Brigade was turned over to labor for victory in San Francisco, as this message filly shows. "You are not alone." - P. O. Box 43, San Francisco, Calif.

"National leadership of maritime industrial unionism, rank and file policy, and thejn, can be achieved only in the context of the broader labor movement."

DENIES CONFUSION

Bert Weiser of the U.S.P. is a exposes alleged disturbance at a struck warehouse.

It is essential that if there are disturbances, the labor movements should be organized. The public should understand that the disturbances are not a result of the labor movement, but rather a result of the action of the rank and file members.

We are not going to let the disturbance at a struck warehouse prevent us from organizing and fighting for our rights. We will continue to stand together and defend our cause.

At the present time the Sailors' Union of the Pacific is faced with a critical period in its existence. The course which the membership will chart within the next few years will determine not only the future stability and progress of the organization, but the real relationship of ship and seaman to the industrial unions of the nation.

The question of industrial unionism does not enter into the picture at this time, and certainly is not a factor in the present situation. But to seamen, who have been in the vanguard of the movement towards industrial unions for years, these words are a matter of some legitimate concern. They ask: "What are the real issues at stake?"

A LAWYER'S CONSTITUTION

The stage is now set for the hearing of the case for and against the I.S.U. in the International Maritime Union meeting that begins in 22 states in January. The outcome of the meeting cannot be predicted. We have an opportunity to influence and persuade the delegates as never before. Let us chart a course which will keep us as far away as possible from the vortex of the bean counter and the average lawyer that constitute the heart of the C.I.O.

In no way should the fact that the C.I.O. has a constituted central body and a national plan of action, to be carried out throughout the country, affect the different Maritime Unions in their actions. The S.U.P., as an individual member of the International Maritime Union, has the right to act and adopt a constitution as well as the other Maritime Unions. The S.U.P. has a legitimate right to do so.

The voice of the Federation

Tom Mooney was sentenced to death in the San Francisco case. The Federation, in its annual meeting, resolving that it "wholeheartedlly disapproves and repudiates the unjust persecution and the brutal disregard of the civil liberties of the labor movement," adopted a resolution commending the Federation to the world and declaring its determination "to make the life of Tom Mooney a living issue in its campaign for justice throughout the world." It declared that the Federation would continue to fight for admission of Tom Mooney to the New York State Industrial Court and for the suppression of the Red-Baiting campaign. It declared that the Federation "stands with Tom Mooney and his cause as we stand with the victims of the world-wide persecution of the labor movement for the cause of peace and justice and of the rights of workers everywhere.')

REPORT TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SUEP

The business of the S.U.P. is to concentrate on the demands of the seaman. A sailor is entitled to the same freedom, to the same wages and working conditions, as any other worker.
FEDERATION WILL SURVIVE

Individuals have made vast and unselfish statements to the effect that the maritime industry, as it stands today, is the backbone of the Federation— the rank and file members, who by their present and past actions have contributed to the Federation's well-being.

The Federation has run into many storms in the past— some of the storms have stilled within a short time, and others will probably be over in the future, probably worse. Although the membership may appear to be in the greatest of difficulties, they have usually weathered the storm, when it finally breaks, they awaken to what is taking place and immediately set up a better system, and conclusion might be made with determination that makes it stronger and more substantial than before.

Individuals have fought for their basic rights, and even when they have been defeated, there is a result, when they have weathered a storm and emerged victorious. In the Federation's life, there have been storms that they have accomplished what they set to do, not only when conditions were favorable, but also when the situation again develop. The results would be the same as if a lion tamer, who through his continual use of a weapon, has learned to control the animal, and the animal will remain under control the better the weapon is.

A parallel may be exemplified by the shipping industry. The Captains, as a group, in order to weather the storm of 1901-1902, they were able to achieve lower rates of wages, and that made it possible for the Union to weather the storm of 1913-1914. The same thing has happened with the membership of the Maritime Federation, a strength which they found was needed to weather the storm of 1917-1918. It is the same strength which makes it stronger and more substantial than before.

That is an attitude which often has been assumed by any number of labor organizations, and as a result, over a period of years, through their inactivity and passiveness, they had been slowly broken down by the storms.

MURDER AS A NAZI SPORT

"A battle with the Workmen was for them an amusing challenge. For them, a battle was nothing more than a challenge, and they would fight to the death."

This quotation, taken from Manfred von Killinger's "Murder As A Nazi Sport," expresses the mentality of the Nazi leaders, who believed in the superiority of their race and were willing to kill anyone who stood in their way.

Another proof, if another proof were needed, of the realism and strength of the C.I.O. was the report that Curtis B. Whitcomb, an official of the A. F. of L., was admitted to a hospital here June 15th with a serious injury. Whitcomb, June 14th, was hit by a flying disc, or Frisbee, in an automobile accident in San Francisco. He is in serious condition and his chances of recovery are not good.

Joe Simmons, at a previous meeting of the District Board of the A. F. of L., had the opportunity to speak about the violent campaign that was being conducted among the men of his union. He stated that the rank and file were being sought out and subjected to violence by members of the C.I.O. These members were trying to win the confidence of the rank and file by making false promises and by threatening violence. Simmons stated that the A. F. of L. was trying to prevent this violence and was working to protect the rights of the rank and file.

The membership wonder what their enemies are. The resolution—regardless of whether the vote was made in the presence of the A. F. of L. officials or not—will be presented to the board of the A. F. of L. for its action.

A motion was passed in the A. F. of L. general membership meeting with the following resolution:

"Resolved: That we, the members of the San Francisco Labor Council, by the Northwest Labor Council, by the National Council of the C.I.O., and by the Maritime Council, desire to express our sincere congratulations to the members of the C.I.O. and to all the rank and file of labor for their courage and their ability to carry on under the most difficult conditions."

NEW YORK (F.P.)—A vivid story of child labor conditions in the tuff mines of Montana and in the mining, smelting, and refining industries of California, Washington, and other states was published yesterday in a report issued by the Child Labor Bureau in Washington.

Based on field investigations, the survey, reporting problems of child labor as practiced in 25 states which have not enacted child labor prohibition laws, states that "under the present law, prohibition is for the benefit of adults in the social and economic order, and the laws which seek to meet the problem are ineffective for the protection of the child laborer, who suffers, all the more because of his weakness and ignorance, the exploitation by the interested and selfish individuals involved in the trade involved."

In the report, the commission stated that the prohibition laws are insufficient, and that the temperature of the law is maintained so far as all the states.

The report, which also states that the prohibition laws are insufficient, is designed to improve the condition of the child laborer in the tuff mines of Montana and in the mining, smelting, and refining industries of California, Washington, and other states.
