Disrupters Move Foiled

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—The Maritime Engineers Beneficial Association today became known throughout the maritime industry as a result of the violent struggle over the issue of a new contract.

The MEBF, whose membership includes 6000 engineers, has for some time been engaged in a fight for recognition by the National Maritime Union of America. The MEBF has been advocating the sit-down strike for years as the only way to guarantee fair treatment for their members.

The MEBF has been fighting for recognition by the NMA for many years, and today's victory is a great milestone in their campaign for fair treatment. The MEBF is now in a position to negotiate with the NMA on the issues of a new contract, and they are determined to secure a fair deal for their members.

The victory of the MEBF is a significant achievement, and it demonstrates the power of solidarity and determination. The MEBF's成功 shows that when workers stand together and fight for their rights, they can achieve great things.

AMERICAN FIGHTER REPUDIATES USERING LETTER ON SPANISH FRONT

On Friday, July 15, 1938, there appeared in the "West Coast Voice" of the Federation, a letter by Sam Usinger, SUP No. 119. In this letter, Usinger stated that he wanted to show how the importance of the first two strikes of the International Longshoremen's Association against the shipowners in 1934 and 1935 had been betrayed and used against the strikers and the longshoremen.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

During the 1934 strike when the AFL leadership refused to support the strikers, USINGER expressed his disappointment in a letter to the Federation. He wrote that it was denounced with great frothing emphasis by Willie Green. Rightly, he expressed his regret that the Association of the last strike by the AFL 1934 Convention at Tampa, Florida, even after the strike was well under way. The Federation had already betrayed the strikers and was hampered in every way by that Convention and Willie Green.

52 YEARS OF INACTION

Have you read the history of the AFL? All about those two strikes of 1934 and 1935 have been acted and of its reaction when they should have cooperated with the strikers, came as so many feathers of a feather flocking together for the whole five decades.

It is one parade of what it produced and can be expected to continue to produce, to produce its characteristic, interminable, nationalistic, bureaucratic, insensitive, self-serving, self-destructive policies. And it is so. The aggression, the fighting, the venality, the insatiable desire for control and for a personality cult.

Willie protects his kind

And the Maritime Industry had had its share of this out-of-date kind of labor leaders. Remember Grassl, Clarin, Dreyer, Heksen, Dreyer, for non—non—and protected by Willie Green? And these of their school still clinging to the wedgehead—Willie Green, the Daily Fines of the Bad House of Labor and some of his immediate, still in business, still not

Remember when the strikers on the West Coast at the height of their movement in 1914 and in June of that year tried to follow a well-outlined settlement through the Longshoremen's Strike of 1914, the whole thing was completely repudiated and his leadership is unenlightened.

International Union

BBU season's union on a National scale, when we read the history of the strikes through the bitter decades of the Federation. Episodes like it. And, above all, this same antagonistic and self-deceiving leadership of the AFL's union on the East Coast, a scathing group of red-white and blue-clearance leaders. How many of them, if they had only gone with a union in the same way as the BBU?

BRIDGE OVER RIVER

Are you going to do this, you Socialists of the American Federation of Labor? Is it not true that you got your hands on the help of the Spanish people at a glance, that solidarity, which carried so much confidence and leadership when it rang out at every meeting?

We need and want that voice and that Unity again.

Brain and Brawn Combine as Longshoremen Pass World Products Thru Their Hands

These men work for a living. Wrestling with steel is no easy way of earning your day's pay as the picture shows. One slip here and death or serious injury results. Muscles and brains combine on the waterfront to skillfully handle these assignments every day.

Out of the hatch of a steamship. Note the hazards on this ship. Pipe lying there. Broken hatch. How easily a man could break his neck, bent upon his job and watching for his very life—a slip into the broken hatch and another man is injured on the job. These men the problem that controls them on a job where at least accidents are plentiful. Shipowners say all it takes to keep share is an office and tell the longshoremen how uncomfortable these jobs are but the men on the job know—they work.

Steel. One of the most dangerous jobs on the waterfront. A knowledge of their job means life to these men.

Oranges for the people of other countries. Through the hands of these men pass the products of the world for your table. Loaded at San Pedro, these oranges will grace the table of some other land.

A busy day on the front. Scenes like this will be of the past if the shipowners have their way about this September. Unity among the workers, always advocated by the longshoremen will keep the harbor safe. Life and limb are endangered every moment that men work around cargo improperly stowed.

Coffee for the people of other countries. Through the hands of these men pass the products of the world for your table. Loaded at San Pedro, these oranges will grace the table of some other land.

Shipowners' idea of "safety first." Note the deck load of lumber close to the hatch coaming, the cargo in between decks set flush with the coaming. Safety rules at sea demand 18 inches clearance. Life and limb are endangered every moment that men work around cargo improperly stowed.

Danger is the pass word on the waterfront. Shipowners' refusal to stop safety laws—refusal to look out for lives of men who earn their living. You see these scenes every day.

Solidarity Always Wins

Behind the smiling mien of Little Almond Roth there was today the same union-busting program of the ship-owners as existed in the days of '34 and '36. These methods are different but their aim is the same. Smash the Maritime Unions.

Let's look back on the days that are past but which may come again. Look at the picture in 1938 and except for a few changes it is the same today.

Back in 1938 the maritime workers were the Maritime Federation. Two years had intervened and during those years the union leaders had been fighting, attempting always to strangle in their agreements.

Into the picture stepped the Collegiate Mariner whose job it was to smash the Maritime unions. "T. O. East" left the union in 1936. He had failed the shipowners with his open attack of police thugs, their guns. The shipowners repaid him by ousting him. Roth, chairman of the Fed. said publicly: "These boys are O.K. We'll deal with them.

Into the back of the maritime unions he stuck a knife—hope the public wouldn't see further than his honeyed phrases.

Mr. Bonsell, as usual, than while he planned a long-range program of holding from within. In each union were slobs and disruptists and they deliberately sided out the shipowners' program of disruption, creation of hatred and disunity.

Today the shipowners are ready. In the East their powerful lobby has succeeded in winning an 1872 law giving the Government the right to hire through government unions.

The law, created to aid the seamen in their fight against being shanghaied, the Maritime Commission is put to use by the unionbusting efforts.

On the West Coast they have their old reliable, Judas Joe Ryan, and in the other maritime unions disruptive elements are at work.

On the West Coast they have union officials who follow their program of divide and conquer.

In the past period they have had the red-hating attack going full swing. Coupling with that another drive to arouse the public to a greater fear, to make him ineffective among his own union members.

Now they have the elections coming up. More and more progressive unions, more and more government legislation and they hope to discredit the unions through a bloody war. No time to waste—get to the battle front.

Today the armament is being readied for the struggle of tomorrow. You have a right to know what they mean to the maritime workers of this coast.

The agreement provides that this government can fire any union member at the polls.

Today the maritime workers will not stand for this division of labor and make null and void the agreement. This book should be in every working man's hand.

Voice of the Federation.

Dear Sir:

During the last two weeks several of the editor-less scramble halls on the West Coast have been carrying articles about the NMU and the elections that have just been concluded in the NMU.

They gloss over the fact that some of Ryan's men are using baseball bats on the waterfront and saying that the NMU is going to be run by the rank and file. These men have been setting up a group of twenty or thirty men to take over the NMU and they are going to drive the membership out of office and allow baseball bats and strike breakers.

In my opinion, it appears to me that the excuse that they are going to use is the same one that was used against the ISU and the Constitution states that no group shall be in control of a group of men or women that are going to be in the NMU.

Meetings have been held to pass resolutions and they have been supplemented by the presence of council and other officials. They still do not mean to give up the struggle and they are going to continue to use the baseball bats and strike breakers to drive the membership out of office.

In the past few weeks, many things have taken place of which the membership in the various ports and on board the ships are probably unaware.

The newspapers are carrying articles of a sort that even goes so far as to say that there is a "right wing" faction in the union. This is not true. The newspapers are carrying articles of a sort that even goes so far as to say that there is a "right wing" faction in the union.

In my opinion, the membership should觉醒起来 and fight against this faction. It is not true that the newspapers are carrying articles of a sort that even goes so far as to say that there is a "right wing" faction in the union.
