CIO Mighty Power For Peace, Says Lewis

'It's Backbone of Liberty'

SAN FRANCISCO—The CIO in this crucial time is a mighty power for democracy, peace and progress, CIO President William Green said today at the order of his report to the second annual CIO convention here.

Following are the opening paragraphs of Lewis' report:

...and labor cooperation activity with farm organizations whenever possible. The CIO has made conferences in New York State, and it is interested in all aspects of our country as a result of the CIO campaign and the CIO, established and fought with the assistance of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, is responsible for all the new labor and anti-capitalist victories.

Labor and the Trade Unions

Nowhere has a problem been more obvious than in New York City, where the city's largest trade union, the CIO organized and fought with the assistance of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, is responsible for all the new labor and anti-capitalist victories.

The Fundamentals of Labor and the Trade Unions by Robert G. Lewis

In the past year, with increased support of organized labor, employers have made great progress in the enactment of new legislation that will enable them to defend existing labor and social programs.

The CIO has used its political influence to defend existing labor and social programs. The union agreements to which its members have contributed are now being strengthened and expanded under the guidance of the basic stability and our country as a result of the new labor and anti-capitalist victories.

The CIO has emerged from the organized labor movement a powerful voice in defense of the worker and a strong advocate of the principles of free association and democracy.

No War, Guard Rights

SEATTLE—Demands that the United States keep out of the European war, that it be limited to its own defense, and that all civil liberty be the high price paid by our country in this war. The United States has been in the war for over 50 years, but before that it had been the United States. The United States has been in the war for over 50 years, but before that it had been the United States. The United States has been in the war for over 50 years, but before that it had been the United States.
Morse's Decision

The decision handed down by Arbitrator Dean Wayne Morse against the longshoremen in the port of San Francisco because they refused to work with strike breakers and break the strike line of the Shipowners' Association means that the battle is far from over. The employers have vowed to fight to the bitter end, and there will be a long and bitter struggle ahead. The longshoremen have made it clear that they will not give up the struggle for a better contract, and there will be a showdown in the near future.

Mr. (Loaded) Dies

SECRETARY ICKES hit the nail on the head when he named Martin Dies, the new war's most prominent anti-communist, as the "most important man in the House." Dies has been a thorn in the side of the longshoremen ever since he began his crusade against the ILWU. He has used his position on the Dies Committee to try to undermine the union and to prevent it from organizing in the state of Texas. The Bill of Rights has been practically abolished in that state, and the Dies Committee should be muzzled.

The judicial procedure referred to by Arbitrator Morse, which takes place under the guise of "arbitration" but is really nothing more than an attempt to get the longshoremen to accept a contract that they do not want, is one more example of the tactic used by employers as their new union-busting device. As we have pointed out before, this is the only way that they can keep the union from growing.

The employers' main argument is that under the current contract it is impossible to continue to operate the ports. This is a complete lie. The ports are running smoothly, and there is no reason why they cannot continue to operate.

The employers have also tried to argue that the longshoremen are here to stay; secondly, that they must be dealt with honestly and in good faith. This is not true. The employers have been nothing but dishonest and unfair in their dealings with the union.

The employers' last argument is that the union is not needed. This is not true. The union has been a great help to the workers, and it is needed now more than ever.

The longshoremen are determined to stand up and fight for their rights. They will not give up until they have won. The longshoremen are united, and they are ready to meet the challenge.

"The Decision."

Says 16,000,000 Unemployed

Rexford G. Tugwell, National Resources Planning Board (this week estimated the total unemployment in the United States in 1932 at 11,000,000, and that it would be 12,000,000 by January of 1933. Today he estimated that the total unemployment would be 16,000,000. He stated that his figures were arrived at by a fairly simple and straight formula. He stated that the depression had never been so deep before; that the depression had never been so broad before. The President of the National Resources Planning Board said that the depression had never been so deep before.

Cardenas Says War

The critical hour for our security is here. Mexico will fight in order to defend the country. We must all be united in defense. The Mexican Constitution foresees a federal government. It is necessary to defend the country from foreign intervention. The country will fight in order to defend the country.
