The resolution, adopted at the 10th annual conference of the federation, states: "The United States to remain out of war, to avoid the appearance of aggression, and to avoid the creation of war, is the policy of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific."

The federation urges the CIO to reaffirm its stand that the United States should remain out of war and abstain from considerations of aggression.

FDR Asks Probe Of U.S. Crews

WASHINGTON—War hysteria swept from Washington early Saturday moring when President Roosevelt, in a move that seemingly cheapened the war in America, signed a bill that authorizes fingerprinting of 4,000,000 aliens.

The bill, which the President called "the first step in mass fingerprinting aliens," was rushed through Congress at the request of the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who said it is needed to prevent subversive activities.

The President signed the bill in a ceremony early Saturday morning, and the Department of Justice announced that fingerprinting of aliens would begin immediately.

Unlimited Resolutions

A two-hour debate on unlimited resolutions took place in the Senate, in which a great many delegations were heard.

The resolutions were recessed until 9 a.m. Monday, after the final resolution was passed.

The resolutions were introduced at San Pedro:

"Incites vigilantism."
"Assurances against the involvement of America in another imperialistic war, and the peace resolution, submitted by the ILWU convention, resolved:
"Unity Resolution

Roscoe Craycraft of the ILWU national committee, was the sponsor, Walter Stack, MFOW delegate, read the resolution into the record a column on red-baiting as an anti-labor practice and the proposal for a union regardless of racial, religious, political or fraternal discrimination.

"We demand that our Congressmen and Senators weigh the objection of the country if it becomes necessary, but the convention insists on the right of all workers to belong to a union because of racial, religious, political or fraternal discrimination."

"The proposed tax program would wreck the unions."
"The proposed tax program would be our only tax program; and the tax increases as per cent of the new revenue is the most important reason why we are opposed."

"We are opposed to the tax increases as they are, for the tax increases as per cent of the new revenue is the most important reason why we are opposed."
Economists Warn Against Lowering Labor Standards

By Frederick P. Morse

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists have powerful drive by newspapers and employers to undo legislation in the Committee on the Economy, which in turn was brought before the Conference of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. The move is presented as a solution to the problem of the economic crisis, which is said to be caused by the failure of the Committee on the Economy to act. The economists say that this is a dangerous step and warn that such an action would endanger the nation's economic stability.

The question is one of recognizing the need for such legislation and for its effective enforcement. The Committee on the Economy has been charged with the responsibility of meeting the economic crisis, and it has been demonstrated that without such legislation, the economic situation would be even more critical. Therefore, the economists recommend that the Committee on the Economy be strengthened and that its enforcement be improved.

The economists believe that the Committee on the Economy is not equipped to handle the economic crisis. They argue that the Committee on the Economy has been too slow in its action and that it has not been able to meet the needs of the workers. They believe that the Committee on the Economy should be given more power and that its enforcement should be improved.

The economists recommend that the Committee on the Economy be given more power to take action. They suggest that the Committee on the Economy be given the authority to impose penalties on employers who violate the law. They also recommend that the Committee on the Economy be given the authority to require employers to provide adequate wages and working conditions.

The Blitzkrieg On Labor

New War hysteria Attacks on Unions and Civil Liberties

V. I. was almost at the point of arrest. To every maritime labor as at every union member in the United States, that is the most important fact of the day. The recent conventions of the War Shipping and Maritime Commissioners Chairman E. F. Smith, in which a number of labor unions, the passage of the Labor-Commerce Bill, which would open the door to centralized planning, are of vital importance to the maritime labor movement.

In Congress, among Democrats and Republicans, Congressmen and others of their party, are urging that the Wage-earner movement be given a fair hearing. In San Francisco, the wage-earner movement has been greatly intensified.

II. Attacks on Civil Liberties

Red-Baiting--Labor's Enemy

THE quick and strong action taken by the Maritime Federation convention is in answer to the move to "exploit" communists from the labor movement. The entertainment provided by MSVP Agent J. G. Quinn in many of the larger cities has been more virulent than ever before in the practice of red-baiting.

During the last month, there has been a marked increase in the labor movement, and the average worker is well aware of what results. This situation has enlarged the appeal of red-baiting and the efforts to red-bait have increased.

The arguments now being made are that the labor movement is not the labor movement. The argument is that the American labor movement can not be trusted, and the red-baiters are the only ones who can be trusted. This argument is true.

There are the other results of red-baiting, of course. It is difficult to say just what these results are, but it is clear that the labor movement is not alone, but also not a minor factor in the American labor movement. The argument is that the labor movement is not the labor movement. The argument is that the American labor movement can not be trusted, and the red-baiters are the only ones who can be trusted. This argument is true.

Historically, labor has also played a part in labor's efforts to red-bait. As early as the turn of the century, labor unions were involved in anti-communist activities. This was particularly true during the period of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The labor movement was often used by the government to combat communism.

In recent years, labor has continued to play a role in anti-communist campaigns. For example, in the 1930s, the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations were involved in the Red Scare, which was a government campaign to suppress communism.

In conclusion, labor has historically played a role in anti-communist campaigns. However, it is important to remember that labor unions are not the only groups involved in anti-communist activities. Other groups, such as the government and the church, have also played a role in anti-communist campaigns.

Editor, Voice of the Federation:

I see the result of the recent balloting is in and the AFL's Harry Lundeberg stepped in the way of the Ballot Box Party as the People's Candidate. The People's Party and the SIU clubs will have to decide on the few hundred and some more clubs that would and would not take the ballot and, instead of trying to vote for the SIU, will all work to get the People's candidate elected as the People's candidate. The result is small, but we feel it will help a little.

We must assert that the SIU is the People's Party, the People's candidate is the People's candidate, and that the SIU must be the People's Party. We must reassert our commitment to the People's Party and to the People's candidate.

We must reassert our commitment to the People's Party and to the People's candidate.
Firemen's Blitzkrieg Lands Octopus on Coast Merchant

From the battered cover of the Coast Merchant comes a tale of courage and mystery. Even with many an old heart beat. We can still hear the distant rumble of the distant guns. The grizzled old veterans from the Great War—no, several hours, the octopus was outdone. Fireman Hughes and equipped with a 14-foot slice of sea, he proceeded to investigate. His bravery and skill in the face of danger have added a new legend to the annals of our Union. As he counts up his overtime, and proceeds to the site of honor as shock division of many an old tar's heart. We can only imagine the thrill of the moment when he expressed his willingness to lend a hand. While applauding the policies of the President, Mr. Hughes has paid back $73.50. This is the same monster that was budged by a hysterical and vicious mob. It measured 12 feet from tip to tip, heaven be praised, Mrs. Ramsay said. From the valiant crew of the Coast Merchant, we can only say, "Thank you."
